

I do not want any companies, including Banking associations to have the ability to contact me after my business is finished with them. Nor do I want them or any business to be allowed to sell my name and telephone number to others who then can have access to my home. The incessant calling from Telemarketers is a violation of my privacy. One can say do not answer the phone, however I am a professional on call numerous nights and have no time to play the ongoing game with telemarketers nor should my phone line be held up by these "services". I strongly support the no call list. The Banking Associations have no right to violate my privacy in an effort to make money for themselves.
